or snow has fallen over a large both spring and winter wheat y, although the precipitation has been light in the Southwest, where moisture was most argently needed. Thus far this season there have been practically no complaints received concerning weather from the principal soft winter wheat producing States east of the Mississippi. This has had some effect in tempering the tendency to advance July and September contracts, but a declining tendency had been checked by somewhat lighter world's exports than expected, and partly by the continued light primary receipts in the Northwest, and the unexpectedly large decrease in the visible supply. Nervousness and Irregularity with eats or corn, but as the acreage in that State is uncommonly large, about 6,000,000 acres, it is supposed that, barring accidents, the total will be a large one, possibly close to 90,000,000 bushels.

New York, April 2.—Weakness in day contracts at Chicago was the printipal feature in domestic wheat martets carly in the week. These contracts declined far more rapidly than be new crop contracts, and this was sonsidered conclusive evidence that he May deal had come to an end. Addices from various sources in the West suggested that within the past ten lays more than 20,000,000 bushels of lay had been thrown over. Some placed the total as high as 30,000,000 whether is the total as high as 30,000,000 bushels of lay had been thrown over. Some placed the total as high as 30,000,000 bushels, or about equal to the supposed holdings of the big buil leaders. The outlook is now fairly bright for realthier and more normal conditions. Many who unloaded May contracts replaced them with July or September, and these contracts were relatively strong, in the face of more favorable weather and crop prospects. Consequently May, which sold at a premium that was alleged that priced that prices held up remarkably well, and especially taking into consideration the more satisfactory wheather in both spring and winter wheat territory. On the other hand, however, it must be admitted that prices held up remarkably well, and especially taking into consideration the more satisfactory wheather in both spring and winter wheat territory. On the other hand, however, it must be acknowledged, the primary receipts have been light, notable with the corresponding days that the primary receipts have been light, notable with the corresponding days that the corresponding days that the primary receipts have been light, notable with the corresponding days that the primary receipts have been light, notable with the corresponding days that the primary receipts have been light, notable with the primary receipts have been light, notable primary receipts have been light to 30,000,000 bushels of the primary luth. Besides this influence, buying was partly stimulated by rumors of less favorable prospects in Kansas, it was alleged that rain was still urgantly agent.

Steady Market Later in Week.
Late in the week there was slightly more steadiness, and temporarily a small rally. Offerings were not excessive, and notably of May contracts in Chicago. This led some traders to imagine that many of the chief holders of May for the rise had succeeded.

by about nine mills in New England so far having been either forced to cordance with the statement issued when the cut was made, future business is only being accepted on a basis of 8 3-4 cents, and that price will soon be formally established and maintained until June 10. There has been more steadiness in other cotton goods lines, some of which will not be revised downward at the present time. This is particularly true of leading brands of tickings, denims, and other heavy branded cottons.

Sales at Fall River last week reached 80,000 pieces, of which 40,000 were for spot delivery. The export business with China has now reached a volume of 15,000 bales in the current movement, and further orders in small parcels are being considered. It is strongly emphasized in mercantile circles that the business passing in cotton goods is being done at the expense of values, and the buyers of the country are charged with attempting to discount a 16,000,000 bale cotton crop before the crop is planted. Mills are being forced to curtail production more and more as the cotton year goes on while prices for goods are shrinking, without a corresponding lessening in the value of raw materials and other costs of production.

New York, April 2.—The day-to-day vibration of stocks and the small arc traversed by the movement is evidence of the state of suspension in which speculation is held at present.

Uncertain opinions over the future course of events account partly for the inertia, which was so pronounced as to make March the dullest month of any since the spring of 1904. Total sales of stocks on the exchange in May or that year were 5,228,000 shares; in the month just ended the total was 6,789,000. On March 27 sales were 143,000 shares, the lowest total in thres years for a full day.

Approach of the end of the Supreme Court's recess and nearness of the date on which the new Congress is to assemble make restrictive influences which doubtless account for much of the dullness. Confidence is expressed that the speculative fabric is fortified by long anticipation against a Supreme Court decision unfavorable to the corporations in the antitrust cases. This profession of confidence is so general in stock market quarters as to leave in doubt the influence of the activity of the market. The question of the scope of congressional activity at the special session, however, especially to variational spiritual action. Therefore, the principal thing to watch from new on will be the progress the new crop makes toward this development. A record-breaking acreage is already assured. But as planting operations will not be completed before another month, nothing of a deanite character can be said as to the prospects in this connection until the crop has had a chance to develop its growth, which will not reach the full stage until July and August above the middle portion of the belt. Therefore, the situation, as far as the future is concerned, still a highly speculative one.

New Oriegins, Lia., April 2—With the opening of the extra session of Congress Tuesday the cotton trade will once more be on the anxlous seat in vegard to anti-future legislation. When the last Congress ended certain legislators made no secret of the fact that they intended to introduce bills modeled after the famous Scott bill at the first opportunity in the extra very dull while the fight over the Scott bill was in progress, and it is likely that the duliness will be in evidence again this week.

With legislation concerning futures almost certain, traders in cotton have one consolation, and that lies in the knowledge that an effort will be made to substitute for the drastic hill of last session a measure which will give the government supervision over the exchanges of the country. Such a measure would be doubly welcome to the majority of cotton brokers and appeculators, first, because it would do Rway with certain objectionable features that now exist as cotton futures are traded in in the North, and, see-

New York, April 2—The festure of the market the past week has been the frequent outbursts of heavy selling, particularly in the July option. This encouraged bear attacks and caused breaks, in prices of between 10 and 20 points. They were followed by attrong support and almost equally as sharp raffles up to yesterday, but when the market left off, then it was week and near the lowest range of prices for the week. It has been difficult to trace this selling. This fact, together with the very disappointing action of the market in the face of the most buillah statistics for many years, except last year, has been so puzzling that confusion prevails in the ranks of the bulls. About half a dozen of the most active brokers of ring traders often used by some of the big interests are estimated to have sold something like 200,000 bales of May.
